

CHOKED BULLDOG TO RESCUE GIRL TERRIBLY BITTEN

Policeman Rammed Night
Stick Down Throat of Ferocious Animal.

Severely bitten in the shoulder by a vicious white bulldog that leaped on her as she passed along the street, May Duffy, fourteen, of No. 3 Bethune street, is badly wounded at St. Vincent's Hospital, though reported to be improving today. The dog, which was captured alive with difficulty, was turned over to the Board of Health.

The child and two companions were passing the corner of Hudson and Twelfth streets at 10 o'clock last night when the animal leaped on the Duffy girl and knocked her down. Policeman Rogers of the Charlton street station clubbed the dog and then had to catch it by the throat and choke it when it attacked him. He finally rammed his night stick down the dog's throat.

Ropes were brought, and the snarling, fighting brute was tied so that he was helpless and a rope was placed about his jaws, red from the girl's blood, so that he could not bite. Then he was taken to the station house and placed in a cell to await examination by the Board of Health.

Dr. McGowan came from St. Vincent's

Hospital. He found the child's flesh had been torn to the bone in seven different places about the arms and shoulders and three deep bites in her breast. She was taken to the hospital still unconscious. Dr. McGowan said later:

MARY DUFFY

"This is the worst case of dog bite I have ever seen. I doubt if there has ever been such a case in this hospital. The child is in a precarious condition and may die."

The police are endeavoring to learn the name of the owner of the dog. He appears to be a well-bred animal, but when the ropes were taken from him in the cell he became surly and vicious.

WHAT CARNEGIE LOOKS LIKE.

The Eardrum of a Whale, Says His Scientists in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28.—Andrew Carnegie looks like the eardrum of a whale. If any doubt this, send them to the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, where the eardrum is on exhibition. The eardrum was discovered by John S. Taylor of the faculty of the Carnegie Technological School, in Newfoundland. Mr. Taylor was present when the whale was being cut up for commercial purposes. When he saw the eardrum, he was astonished by its resemblance to the Laird of Skibo. He brought it back and now photographs of the curiosity have been furnished to the newspapers.

FIRMNESS OF CHARACTER.
(From the Washington Star.)
"A young man should learn to say 'no,'" remarked the old-fashioned moralist.
"That's right," replied Senator Borah.
"The habit may come in handy some day when he is asked to resign."
